3. Centre for Tribal and Customary Law

A. Mission Statement:

The mission of the Centre is to provide intricacies and insight about the culture of tribal peoples, their philosophy of life and prevailing customary practices. It also aims to develop and foster critical analytical skills for understanding and representation of tribal peoples, both in India and abroad. The Centre further aims to provide an inter-disciplinary perspective on the study of tribal peoples by introducing the basic concepts and debates on their governance, development and administration within the national and global framework emanating from the disciplines of anthropology, sociology, political science, public administration, economics and law and to train students for multifaceted research in issues concerning tribal peoples.

B. About the Centre :

Tribal people constitute a substantially important part in the rich and diverse conglomeration of Indian population. They have their unique socio-cultural mechanism and ordered behaviour pattern for the maintenance of equilibrium, social order, tranquillity and peace in their society. These mechanisms are taboos, social sanctions, ritualistic faiths, obedience to super-natural powers, public opinion, good sense and ethics. These practices constitute the Customary Laws of the tribal society.

Until recently there hadn't been any formal education in this field in India. At this backdrop and to fill-up this much needed gap, the Central University of Jharkhand in the month of August 2012 established the Centre for Tribal and Customary Law. It holds the prestige of being the FIRST Centre in India dedicated exclusively for research and teaching concerning the Customary Laws, Legal and Governance aspects of Tribal People of India
